They painted their faces for fights. They also painted their faces for ceremonies. They used face paint to show which region they are from. They used it to show their special place in the society.

Native Americans used plants to make face paint. They also used tree parts. They made red, white, and black paint. They made green and yellow paint, too. They used colors with care. Each color had a meaning. The meaning sometimes varied from groups to groups. Each group had its own designs.
